Return To Service,
Retain Former Rank

Atlanta, Oct. 8.—Know any former non-commissioned officers who would like to return to the army with their old rank?

They can if they were honorably discharged since May 12, 1945, and if they re-enlist by October 20.

They've got to hurry, because the deadline is near, and the rule requires that men taking advantage of this opportunity must be physically examined, processed and actually in the army by October 20. Because of the distance from processing centers, this means that men should apply by October 16 to 18.

Headquarters Fourth Service Command today sought to bring the change in policy to the attention of all former non-commissioned officers. The obvious advantage is that any man re-enlisting after the deadline must do so as a private. If he held a rating such as master sergeant, buck sergeant or corporal and is eligible for reinstatement, he should apply before October 20.

Full information about this re-enlistment inducement may be obtained at any army recruiting station.

LEEFIELD SCHOOL HAS FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Fire Prevention Week is being observed in an attractive way in the Leefield school this week. Large posters showing fire hazards, forest fires and property loss are on the walls of the building. The children have written stories to fit the posters and have attached the stories to the posters.

A short program will be rendered in a chapel period this week and all children can run on a short session schedule that day so that the teachers at the farthest school can be present on time.

Back in Circulation

IF ONE FOLLOWS the "Letters" column of a certain nationally important weekly publication, there will be a steady trend of fault-finding with the manner of spending wealth by those who have it. And, noticeably enough, the most drastic criticisms come from those who themselves have displayed lamentable lack of capacity to measurably succeed in the affairs of the world.

Which habit seems to be characteristic of the human race—the spirit of dictation by those not in position to direct.

Most recent outbreak is that arising from a gay coming-out party in aristocratic circles, one of whom publicized the proposed expenditure of $40,000 for an evening of frolic. Excessive censure is directed at the extravagance of the incident, as if the spending of that amount of money is a crime against all of society. One young lady weeps, "I think that a thousand American girls like myself could have gotten a watch or a coat . . . with a bit of the money spent so lavishly and foolishly."

That's a way with people who think half way through a proposition, but the truth is the expenditure of this sum, for whatever legitimate cause, was a generous contribution to others who had something to offer by which means they came into a share of the cash. Maybe a liberal share of the vast sum was spent for flowers; then somebody who must work with hands had grown the flowers, and had earned the right to share in it. Maybe some of it was spent for music; then some talented person was being compensated for the exercise of talents which had been trained at some little expense of cash and time. Maybe some of it was spent for cakes and cream; then somebody who toiled had shared in the "foolish" distribution of wealth.

Somewhat, we believe the parents who put money back into circulation had done a good deed for many persons—even though they spent the money for extravagances which are beyond the common herd. Money spent, even extravagantly, serves a vastly larger purpose than money hoarded by those who are above need.

Now, if the young girl who was disturbed about the "foolish" distribution had a sort of feeling that the wealthy family should have doled out charity to her for a "watch or coat," she was being affected by the growing attitude that those who labor and earn, should share equally with those who loiter and squander.

Voters Cut Off Lists Restored By Ruling

"Since the poll tax is no longer prerequisite for voting, a person who is otherwise qualified as an elector is entitled to have his or her name placed on the qualified voters' list and to participate in all elections. A careful examination of the constitution as amended, the statutory laws as well as the decisions of our appellate courts, definitely shows that when the qualification for non-payment of poll tax was removed, a person who is otherwise qualified to vote is not required to re-register and again subscribe to the voters' oath."

By this ruling of Attorney General Eugene Cook several hundred thousand voters in the state have been added to the rolls, women in particular being affected. "As I construe the law," ruled Cook, "when a person has once properly registered he remains registered until and unless the General Assembly provides for a re-registration or enacts legislation such as the act approved February 5, 1945, which requires re-registration under certain conditions. Until the legislature enacts statutory authority to the contrary I am of the very definite opinion that once a voter is registered he remains permanently registered."

DEVELOPING SOIL
Georgia farmers who are following definite plans for soil improvement are finding that soil fertility and farm income can be increased at the same time, the Agricultural Extension Service reports. Demonstrations carried out in co-operation with the Extension Service have shown the effectiveness of terracing, cover crops, small grain and annual close-growing crops and the use of lime and phosphate.

When Men Bellow

DID YOU EVER recognize the similarity in a man and a broncho? Well, there is a striking resemblance, as a group of old-agers discussed a few days ago.

Wherein is the resemblance, did you ask? Well, maybe there are other points of sameness, but what we had in mind is the fact that when either one once calls for the caltrop, he's docile from thence forth.

Ever see a western cowboy riding a bucking broncho? Did you see how the animal dashed across the field, lurching and kicking at every step; then suddenly stop and hold his head down and bellow? Well, that means he has surrendered, and he never bucks after that. Even a child can ride a horse after he's bellowed once.

And so are men about their independence in their splendor; they run here and there; dare the world to do its worst, and kick up their heels against precedents; go with whom they please; run out at night; run off on gay parties—and then dare to open their mouths. They are the bucking broncho type; you'd think them above possibility of control. Then you see a quivering down—sudden like the broncho stops when he surrenders. And his rearing days are over.

That's what we were talking about the other day, and we agreed that when an old man gets so docile that he speaks of his wife in public as "mother," he's doing what the broncho does when he bellow. He's quit bucking.

But not so when a woman speaks of her husband as "daddy," which you sometime hear; when she does that, you can understand that she knows she's got him under her thumb. Just listen out for this, and see how right we were.

CLAY RESIGNS AS HEAD OF HIGHWAY

Engineer McDonald Named Succeed Department Director In Important State Job

Ryburn G. Clay, director of the State Highway Department, has resigned his post and Governor Arnall has accepted his resignation with praise for his work in the office.

George T. McDonald, state engineer, who has served with high efficiency through the difficult war period, was appointed by the Governor to take over the post of director as well as execute the duties of engineer. He will receive only the director's salary.

Clay resigned to return his attention to his own large personal interests, which he has had to neglect in serving the state. He said he has been very happy in the work and has received splendid co-operation from all. In accepting the resignation, Governor Arnall wrote him:

"When you went to the State Highway Department, it was heavily involved financially. Now the department is completely debt-free. So far as I know, this is the first time in many years, if ever, that the department has operated on a current cash basis with all past due indebtedness clear and cash on hand to meet all contracts."

McDonald, who has made an outstanding record since joining the department in 1926, is a veteran of the first world war and was wounded at Ypres, Belgium, and again in the American offensive through the Argonne Forest in France.

DEMONSTRATION FARMERS
Unit test demonstration farmers following farm practices outlined by the Extension Service and testing new types of fertilizer developed by the Tennessee Valley Authority are contributing practical and profitable information to county program planning committees. Their farms become exhibits of the county program in operation and they assist in getting the program adapted to and adopted by their communities.

TO FISH POND
This gives notice that on Monday, October 15th, we will fish the old Bird and Daughtry mill pond, two miles above Registrar. Will have fish for sale at that time. BRANNEN & DAVIS.

Governor Moves For State Parks

With a view to further development of Georgia's state parks to meet recreational needs which are to increase as men and women return from the armed services, Governor Ellis Arnall has called upon the state park authorities to redouble their efforts to secure federal funds for such.

The governor further suggested to Parks Director Ward Harrison that efforts be made to buy or obtain as gift certain army buildings to be disposed of, the lumber and fixtures of which could be used in providing houses for Vogel, Pine Mountain, Magnolia, Fort Mountain and other state parks.

In this way, said Arnall, "we could readily develop a program that could be utilized beneficially by the people of the state."

"From now on," he continued, "our recreation is going to be constantly more important to our people, and we must do all we can with our limited finances to develop our park system."

He pointed out that the proposed Clark Hill power development near Augusta and other power developments will create large lakes whose recreational facilities could be utilized to advantage by the state. He asked the park authorities to "contact the proper federal authorities advising them that Georgia will co-operate fully in this program."

LAND SALE.

On Wednesday, October 17th, we will sell to the highest bidder, Sam Rosenberg's farm, known as the Bedford Everett place, on the road between Metter and Excelsior in Candler county, consisting of 740 acres, with 175 acres in cultivation. The farm will be sub-divided and offered in separate parcels, then as one entire tract. No finer farm land and stock range can be found. The peach grove produces a handsome sum each year. We will also sell five mules, about twenty-five cattle, about 500 bushels of corn, two wagons, harness, farm equipment and tools and other personal property. The sale will be held at the Bedford Everett old homestead, and will begin at 11 o'clock. Land will sell one-half cash, with balance in one and two years at 6 per cent, and personal property for cash. Owner reserves right to reject any or all bids.

Don't forget the time and place. SAM ROSENBERG, Statesboro, Ga. L. C. ANDERSON, Attorney, Metter, Ga. (2Sep23p)

Federal Supplies Be Given States

A move to have surplus government commodities and equipment turned over to the various states for use in their governmental and institutional programs has been launched by a member of the Georgia state legislature, Ben W. Fortson, of Wilkes county.

Representative Fortson requested Senators George and Russell to employ their efforts to this end, and they have replied that they are willing to work for such a disposition if the statutes allow.

"Fortson pointed out that there are large quantities of federal materials in Georgia that could be used to great advantage by the University System and other state institutions and departments."

REUNION OF LEES

A most enjoyable occasion was the reunion of the Lee family on Sunday, Oct. 7, at the home of Mrs. T. F. Brannen in Statesboro. It was unique in that all of the brothers and their one sister are living, although well advanced in years. The eldest is nearly eighty-six and the youngest is almost seventy. They are: Clayton Lee, Hinton Remington, Miss Ann Remington, Mrs. Gene L. Hodges, Mrs. Wayne Culbreth, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Atkins and Mrs. Fletcher. Mrs. Remington and Miss Ann Remington, sister and niece of Mr. Fletcher, observed their birthday anniversaries on the preceding Sunday.
